NEVADA OUTPUT OF QUICKSILVER NOW INCREASING

NUMBER OF DISTRICTS IN STATE HAVE DEPOSITS OF CINNABAR

There were 33 mines and prospects producing quicksilver in 1914, of which 23 were in California. In 1913 there were 24 producers, of which 18 were in California. The estimated output for California in 1914 was 11,469 flasks, valued at $561,981, against a production of 15,591 flasks, valued at $627,228 in 1913. The output in California in 1914 was the smallest since 1860. The chief producers in 1914 were the New Idria mines of San Benito county, the Oceanic of San Luis Obispo county, the New Guadalupe and New Almaden of Santa Clara county, the St. John of Solano county, and the Helen of Lake county. Among smaller producers were the Cloverdale, Little Panoche, Acachuma, Los Prietos, Alpine, Reed, Aetna, Oat Hill, Hernandez, Little Bonanza, Summit, Wall Street and Knoxville. The output of the famous New Idria, New Guadalupe and New Almaden mines again showed decreases, but the Oceanic and Helen mines were slightly more productive than in 1913 and the revived Oat Hill and St. John mines, working old material under new managers, made relatively large increases in yield. From present information the production of California will not immediately regain the average output of 21,361 flasks for the period 1902-1913.

No production of quicksilver has been made in Oregon, Utah, or Washington in recent years, but a nominal output has been reported from both Maricopa and Yuma counties in Arizona in 1913 and 1914, in the Mazatzal range and in the Quartzsite district, respectively. The production from both localities greatly decreased in 1914.

In Nevada there has been some active prospecting and development of quicksilver ores in recent years, and the output increased in 1914. In Humboldt county the Ruby mine, which produced in 1913, made no output in 1914, but the Goldbanks property in Pleasant valley, a new development, made a substantial yield, and the Dolbear mine, near Antelope Springs, also new, was actively operated. In Mineral county the cinnabar claims near Mina were somewhat further prospected but have made no output to date. In Nye county the production of the Mercury mine, near Lone, was greatly reduced in 1914, but the Nevada Cinnabar properties (old Shoshone), upon which a new Scott furnace was completed, made a large yield. On Bare mountain, near Beatty, the Telluride and Kiernan claims made a small output. In Storey county a nominal recovery of quicksilver was made from metal lost during old operations at the Comstock lode.

The combined output of quicksilver in Arizona, Nevada and Texas in 1914 was 5,099 flasks, valued at $249,851, against 4,622 flasks, valued at $185,943 in 1913.

The domestic quicksilver market was unfavorable and the prices very low during the first seven months of 1913, but upon the outbreak of the European war the prices jumped and producers in a position to profit were encouraged to make their maximum output. The average price for the year will therefore be about $45—the highest since 1890. The total productive capacity of the quicksilver mines of this country as at present known is by no means unlimited, and although high prices may bring spurts of activity and new ore bodies may at any time be discovered, the present improbability of excessive importation indicate high prices throughout the war, at least.

Negotiations on Property Manhattan District

the lease of the White Caps Leasing company terminated. For a while they leased the pumping equipment of the leasing company, but during May the leasing company suddenly withdrew its pumps, and the company at considerable expense had to install piping for itself after borrowing a pump from one of its neighbors. The company has now installed a complete hoisting and mine plant, and has made considerable headway in mine development during the year. If the opportunity offered by the Tonopah Mining company is accepted by the White Caps company a general resumption of work in Manhattan is looked for. The officers of the White Caps are heartily in favor of granting the option, as the mine now looks very favorable, and they are sure the property will be taken over if the option is granted. It is presumed the stockholders will be unanimous in their vote for the option.

(By Associated Press.)
BERNE, Switzerland, via Paris, Jan. 9.—The American dollar is now worth five francs 25 centimes ($1.05) at Berne.
